In the heart of the Columbia River Valley in Washington State, CMI grows spectacular apples, pears, apricots and cherries.

Growing the freshest, highest-quality fruit imaginable comes easy for a company with over 100 years of experience working the land. Formed in 1989 by a group of family owned orchardists who joined forces to combine marketing efforts and expand operations, CMI benefits from the multi-generational expertise offered by owner orchardists; McDougall and Sons, Columbia Fruit Packers, Double Diamond, and Highland Fruit. Today, CMI has grown to become one of Washington State's largest grower/shippers of premium conventional and organic fruit.

Over the past 25 years, CMI's domestic and export programs have expanded significantly.

CMI now ships the very finest quality fruit across the U.S.A. and to more than 60 countries worldwide. In addition to a full suite of mainline apple and pear varieties, CMI offers exclusive varieties and brands such as Ambrosia™, Kanzi® and KIKU® brand apples. CMI partners with first-class growers in Chile, Argentina and New Zealand to deliver apples, pears and cherries year-round.

For over a decade CMI has been a leader in organic growing, with more acreage being dedicated to organics each year. In only 5 years, Daisy Girl Organics™ has grown to be the #1 selling branded organic apples and pears in the U.S.A.

CMI growers are stewards of the land and care deeply about preserving the "orchard way of life" for generations to come.
